Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Pennsylvania Farm Journal, Vol. 2: Devoted to Horticulture, Agriculture, and Rural Economy As regards special manuring, a chief object is to supply the soil with one or more ingredients, of which it has been ascertained to be wholly or in part deficient. In this connection it is proper to call attention primarily to a great and very prevalent abuse, which is a source of very serious loss to most farmers. When a field begins to be unproductive, very few think of doing anything else than to supply it again with a full dressing of barnyard manure. It never occurs to them to inquire whether the diminished fertility may not result from causes which can be removed at little cost by the supply of some particular ingredients which the soil needs. Yet when such is the case, the application of mineral manure is downright extravagance and waste, because we thus supply probably only one or at most but a few of the deficient ingredients which could be furnished more cheaply by some other substance. A...
