The publication is straightforward in study better to fully grasp. It is definitely simplistic but excitement inside the 50 percent of your publication. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

The present issue offers a series of materials for grades four, five and six. These projects have been developed in our Extension Courses in the Project Method of Instruction. Each teacher pursuing the course has been required to plan a project and, with the permission of her supervisors, work it out in her classroom. A full report of the undertaking of such scope as to be helpful to other teachers of the subject or grade has been rendered in each case. We are convinced that one method for bringing about intelligent progress in education consists in making available to teachers generally samples of the best work done in the public schools in the form of carefully prepared outlines and bibliographies, suggested sources of materials, standards of achievement, sample projects, and the like. We feel that the projects which follow do represent some of the best work now being attempted in the New Jersey schools. We desire to express our thanks to the county superintendents, city superintendents, principals, and presidents of teachers organizations who have co-operated in the organization of our Extension Courses, and who by their untiring efforts have contributed so much to making them a success.
