CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 134 pages. Dimensions: 11.0in. x 8.5in. x 0.3in.For the past 43 years, NASA has devoted its facilities, labor force, and expertise to sharing the abundance of technology developments used for its missions with the nations industries. These countless technologies have not only successfully contributed to the growth of the U. S. economy, but also to the quality of life on Earth. For the past 25 years, NASAs Spinoff publication has brought attention to thousands of technologies, products, and services that were developed as a direct result of commercial partnerships between NASA and the private business sector. Many of these exciting technologies included advances in ceramics, computer technology, fiber optics, and remote sensing. New and ongoing research at the NASA field centers covers a full spectrum of technologies that will provide numerous advantages for the future, many of which have made significant strides in the commercial market. The NASA Commercial Technology Network plays a large role in transferring this progress. By applying NASA technologies such as data communication, aircraft de-icing technologies, and innovative materials to everyday functions, American consumers and the national economy benefit. Moving forward into the new millennium, these new technologies will further advance our countrys position as the world leader in scientific and technical innovation. These cutting-edge innovations represent the investment of the U. S. citizen in the Space Program. Some of these technologies are highlighted in Spinoff 2001, an example of NASAs commitment to technology transfer and commercialization assistance. This years issue spotlights the commercial technology efforts of NASAs John F. Kennedy Space Center. Kennedys extensive network of commercial technology opportunities has enabled them to become a leader in technology transfer outreach. This kind of leadership is exemplified through Kennedys recent partnership...
